Handeholder Products Names Vice President of Operations and Product Development

Ann Arbor, Mich. – Handeholder Products, Inc., an industry leader in tablet and mPOS (mobile point-of-sale) device mobility solutions, has named Neal Glazebrook as their Vice President of Operations and Product Development.

This move continues the company’s renewed focus on a long-term commitment to growth and advancement within the mobility industry. In his new role, Glazebrook is responsible for day to day operations of the company, vendor relations, and will spearhead the development of all new products.

“We have seen unprecedented growth over the last two years, and Neal has been at the forefront of that growth,” said Mike Burns, President, Handeholder Products, Inc. “Under Neal’s continued and enhanced leadership role, we foresee an escalation of that growth as we expand not only our processes, but also our scope of products.”

Glazebrook joined the Handeholder team in 2015 and became Director in 2016. His 20+ years of operations management and his role in product development at his past positions made him a natural fit for this promotion and gives the brand insight into other industries and developmental opportunities.

“We are at a pivotal point in this industry where mobility enhancements are changing the landscape of retail, hospitality, financial and most consumer facing industries. I’m very excited to move into this blended role which allows us to grow in a manner that will be beneficial to our customers past, present, and future.” said Glazebrook. “My focus will be on developing new ways and products to simplify the mobility challenge for the front and back end of businesses”
